THE CULTURAL & BUSINESS CENTER

K-PARK is an international cultural and business center — a space of ideas, communication, and inspiration. It will give strong momentum to cultural and innovation projects, open new horizons for cooperation between Kazakhstan and Korea, and become a hub of ethnocultural and social projects in the heart of the new city of Alatau.

Koreans of Kazakhstan

90 years
of unity and creation

The history of Koreans in Kazakhstan is a history of life on a generous land. It is a story of pain and trials, of overcoming and achievement, of deep respect and gratitude.

In 1937, more than 100,000 Koreans were forcibly deported from the Far East to Central Asia. Many lost their lives along the way, and the survivors had to face the harsh trials of fate. In the cold autumn they arrived in Kazakhstan in freight cars — without food, without warm clothes, without any certainty about tomorrow.

Yet in that very moment, the Kazakh people showed genuine generosity. Local residents readily reached out a helping hand, sharing their homes, their bread, and their hope. Deeply grateful for this help, the Koreans of Kazakhstan have worked in every period of history, with dignity and dedication, for the development of the country they call their homeland today.

A New Leap for the Association of Kazakhstani Koreans

The Association of Kazakhstani Koreans plays an important role in strengthening relations between the Republic of Kazakhstan and the Republic of Korea and stands as a trusted partner in advancing cooperation between the two countries.

Strategic goals of the Association:

- Expanding the participation of South Korean companies in social and cultural projects in Kazakhstan
- Strengthening international cooperation in culture, innovation, and business
- Creating the only Korean cultural theme park outside the Republic of Korea

The project is led by the Association of Kazakhstani Koreans and is dedicated to the 90th anniversary of the Koreans' settlement in Kazakhstan, to be marked in 2027.

Spatial design in harmony with nature

K-PARK is designed as a park-like space surrounded by high hills, symbolizing an “oasis” in the Kazakh steppe

The hills form a natural boundary and block the noise of external roads, while the artificial pond regulates the microclimate and brings life to the landscape.

The architecture is designed to blend naturally into its surroundings: from the outside only the “natural terrain” is visible, while inside unfolds a carefully composed modern space.

The office spaces are likewise placed along the terrain and are almost invisible from outside. At the heart of this entire design concept lies the philosophy of “harmony with nature.”

A Hub of Connection and Cooperation

The Visitor Center shapes the first impression of K-PARK. Facing the road, the building welcomes guests and gently leads them away from the bustle of traffic into a space of culture, communication, and rest. A food court, a mini-market, a children's area, and a prayer room create an open and comfortable environment for people of different cultures and ages.

It will also become a place of dialogue that brings together cultural and educational institutions, public bodies, and the business community. The conference hall, meeting rooms, and multipurpose spaces provide a foundation for forums, strategic meetings, and high-level official events.

The Visitor Center establishes K-PARK as a starting point for international cooperation, investment, and joint projects. Here, culture becomes a means of building trust, and trust becomes the foundation of sustainable partnerships and long-term collaboration.

Public Spaces

K-PARK will be the central stage for a rich variety of cultural events and the city's major festivals. National and regional holidays, craft fairs, sports competitions, and exhibitions held here will fill the park with energy and life throughout the year.

At the heart of the park lies the "Meeting & Relaxation Place". This space is the symbol and heart of the park — a place for small events, family rest, and meetings across generations.

The invisible thread of memory connecting Kazakhs and Koreans

The traditions and ways of life of Kazakhs and Koreans share common values: respect for family, labor, and elders, and a deep care for history and the continuity of generations.

In the Cultural Space, these values are embodied in architecture and cultural sculptural forms, creating a meeting point of the two peoples' traditions and a symbol of their spiritual bond.

Experience the spirit of the past

in the Koryo Saram Space

In the Koryo Saram Space, the atmosphere of traditional Korea is carefully recreated through architecture, sculptural forms, and landscape elements. Designed to suit Kazakhstan's climate and natural environment, it nevertheless fully captures the aesthetics and spirit of Korean tradition.

Life in the early years after the Koreans' resettlement in Kazakhstan is also recreated here. Visitors can examine tools, household items, and the various utensils used for storing and preparing traditional food. This interactive space vividly tells the story of the patience and diligence the Koreans showed in a new environment, and of lives lived while preserving their culture and adapting.

As a theme park of Korean culture and a business center, K-PARK carries forward the history and traditions of the Korean community that has walked alongside Kazakhstan. As a landmark of the new city of Alatau, it invites you to a place where communication and learning, new possibilities and cooperation come together.
